

An Orientation to the Scope and Sequence Levels 1 & 2

This Scope and Sequence provides a comprehensive overview of the various instructional components of Latin for the New Millennium. One can examine the overview chapter by chapter or view a single column to check on a given component, e.g., myth.

Each chapter's components are grouped into five categories. The Latin Literature column includes the famous Latin saying that introduces each chapter followed by a listing of the Latin reading's subject matter and the authentic Latin source's genre, title, and author. The Language Facts column delineates the morphology and syntax topics that are introduced in the chapter reading. For ready reference, all charts and paradigms are listed in a separate column entitled Morphology Charts. The Cultural Material section lists all illustrations— maps, artworks, architecture, artifacts—with subject matter noted. (Several chapters also include myth-related material, which is noted with an asterisk.) Oral Latin is a special feature of Latin for the New Millennium. The topic of these modern day conversations along with colloquialisms and everyday vocabulary are listed.

Every three chapters is followed by a review unit overview. Here, the Latin Literature column outlines any non-myth Latin selections, the topic for a set of famous Latin phrases and quotations, and the Latin exercises in the review. Each unit focuses on mythology, and the middle column enumerates the essay topic, the Latin reading activities, as well as the illustrations and their subject matter. The Cultural Information section outlines essay topics including the modern-world connections essays written by university scholars. Again, all illustrations—artworks, architecture, artifacts—are listed with subject matter noted.

Correlations with "Standards for Classical Language Learning"

A Collaborative Project of The American Classical League and The American Philological Association and Regional Classical Associations

This page presents an overview of how Latin for the New Millennium meets the national standards for Latin. In the Scope and Sequence that follows, the standards are specifically delineated in each chapter and review analysis. In addition, throughout the Teacher's Manual the standards are noted section by section.

NB: Latin for the New Millennium Level 2 constitutes a pioneering expansion of one Latin curriculum to build on Rome and her writers as a foundation for studying the subsequent 1,500 years of Latin writings.

Goal 1 - COMMUNICATION

Communicate in a Classical Language

Standard 1.1 Students can read, understand, and interpret Latin.

- Every chapter begins with a famous Latin saying and each review concludes with a set of significant Latin phrases and quotations.
- Authentic Latin readings, adapted from the original, introduce each chapter and provide students an overview of Latin literature from its beginnings through the late antique period. Facing vocabulary facilitates the student's comprehension, which is reinforced by a set of comprehension questions. Each chapter of Level 2 includes an unadapted passage of classical Latin from Nepos's Life of Atticus.
- A review for every three chapters presents additional adapted Latin readings followed by comprehension questions and exercises that review the unit's grammar and syntax.
- Level 2 ends with ten passages of unadapted classical Latin from Nepos's Life of Atticus.

Standard 1.2 Students use orally, listen to, and write Latin as part of the language learning process.

- Multiple exercises in each chapter direct students to apply the chapter's grammar and syntax lessons so that they may learn to write Latin correctly.
 Every chapter concludes with a stimulating section on conversational Latin that features a dialogue among fictional modern-day students that
- students or teacher may read aloud and perform to increase their oral and aural skills in Latin.
- Copious oral exercises in the Teacher's Manual support the listening and speaking components of the text.
- Latin comprehension questions for each review's reading passage require Latin answers from students.
- Exercise 2 of every chapter asks students to recognize English derivatives based on the Latin vocabulary of the chapter.

Goal 2 - CULTURE

Gain Knowledge and Understanding of Greco-Roman Culture

Standard 2.1 Students demonstrate an understanding of the perspectives of Greek or Roman culture as revealed in the practices of the Greeks or Romans.

- Culturally and linguistically authentic Latin reading selections introducing each chapter present Latin authors chronologically and seamlessly interweave Roman culture, literature, and history topics.
- Three maps and a wealth of illustrations of artifacts, objets d'art, architecture, archaeological sites, and cityscapes present in full color the Roman world and aspects of daily life.

• Latin famous sayings that begin each lesson and Latin quotes and phrases in each review present special insight into the Roman mindset and into specific disciplines, e.g., the law.

Standard 2.2 Students demonstrate an understanding of the perspectives of Greek or Roman culture as revealed in the products of the Greeks or Romans.

- The book's chronological arrangement of Latin readings across chapters focuses students on key authors and events from monarchy to late empire and nurture an understanding of the development of the Roman world.
- An abundance of illustrations of artifacts, objets d'art, architecture, archaeological sites, and cityscapes present the Roman world in full color. Classroom discussion and analysis of the illustrations equip students for analyzing the Roman world.
- Each review contains an English introduction to the Roman pantheon and myths concerning the gods and goddesses as well as adapted Latin readings related to myth.
- Each review focuses on an aspect of the Roman world, e.g., slavery.
- Each review features an essay by a university scholar that explores the connections between the ancient and the modern world.
- Illustrations drawn from Roman art and architecture as well as from later epochs accompany each of these myth sections.

Goal 3 - CONNECTIONS

Connect with Other Disciplines and Expand Knowledge

Standard 3.1 Students reinforce and further their knowledge of other disciplines through their study of classical languages.

- The Latin quotes and phrases section featured in each review present specialized vocabulary employed in the academic disciplines.
- Lessons on the grammar and syntax of Latin reinforce students' understanding of English.
- Each review contains an English introduction to the Roman pantheon and myths concerning the gods and goddesses as well as adapted Latin readings related to myth.
- Each review focuses on an aspect of the Roman or early European worlds, e.g., marriage or the medieval university.
- Each review features an essay by a university scholar that explores the connections between the ancient, the post-antique, and the modern worlds.

Standard 3.2 Students expand their knowledge through the reading of Latin and the study of ancient culture.

- Roman culture is imbedded in the Latin readings that are drawn from authentic sources and lead off each chapter.
- Each review focuses on an aspect of the Roman world, e.g., gladiatorial games.
- Each review features an essay by a university scholar that explores the connections between the ancient, post-antique, and the modern worlds.
- Each review contains an English introduction to the Roman pantheon and myths concerning the gods and goddesses, and classical heroes as well as adapted Latin readings related to myth.
- The Latin quotes and phrases section featured in each review present specialized vocabulary employed in the academic disciplines.
- The art images presented in the myth section of each review document the influence of myth in western civilization.

Goal 4 - COMPARISONS

Develop Insight into Own Language and Culture

Standard 4.1 Students recognize and use elements of the Latin language to increase knowledge of their own language.

- The famous sayings at the beginning of each chapter are often sayings used and recognized in the present day.
- Grammar and syntax presentations, especially the "study tips," complement and reinforce a student's understanding of English.
- Exercise 2 of every chapter asks students to recognize English derivatives based on the Latin vocabulary of the chapter.
- The readings drawn from original Latin sources introduce students to a rich Latin vocabulary that, in turn, serves as the basis for many words in English.
- The Latin conversation section of every chapter provides sample dialogues on modern topics. The new Latin words that are used in these sections illustrate the necessary vibrancy of language across time, that new words must be coined in Latin as well as English to allow for communication about new phenomena.
- Each review concludes with a set of famous quotations, phrases, abbreviations, and mottoes, many of which continue in active use today.

Standard 4.2 Students compare and contrast their own culture with that of the Greco-Roman world.

- The Latin passages adapted from authentic literary sources introduce a panorama of Roman and post-antique culture, history, and literature and invite teacher and students to discuss parallels and influences in the modern world.
- Each review includes an essay by a university scholar that explicitly demonstrates the continuity of the classical tradition and Roman culture in the post-antique and the modern worlds.
- Each review's introduction to the Roman gods and myths invites teachers and students to draw comparisons with how various religions today interact with their own culture.
- Level 2's essays on the classical heroes are designed to stimulate discussion of the "hero" through the ages.

Goal 5 - COMMUNITIES

The readings and illustrations in Latin for the New Millennium were carefully chosen to represent the ethnic and geographic diversity that marked the Roman and early European worlds.

Latin for the New Millennium can serve as a springboard for activities that readily meet these standards. However, the opportunity to engage in such multicultural activities will often depend on the school and broader community demographics and culture. The authentic Latin readings of Level 2 demonstrate the influence of Latin throughout Europe and beyond, especially in the academic world and history of ideas.

Standard 5.1 Students use their knowledge of Latin in a multilingual world.

• eClassics provides an Internet venue for students to share their insights into the study of Latin and the classics.

- Standard 5.2 Students use their knowledge of Greco-Roman culture in a world of diverse cultures.
- The Latin for the New Millennium program provides a sound foundation for students to apply their knowledge on the National Latin Examination and in local and state classics activities including Junior Classical Leagues.

Each chapter ends with a list of English derivatives also based on the Vocabulary to Learn. The TM contains background notes on the derivatives and Exercise 2 of every workbook chapter asks students to test their derivative knowledge.

Every chapter of Level 2 of Latin for the New Millennium concludes with an unadapted passage of classical Latin from Cornelius Nepos's Life of Atticus. Facing each unadapted classical Latin passage are two columns of student-friendly translation aids. One column provides vocabulary assistance for a given line while the second column gives grammar, syntax, and background notes. This system facilitates the building of Latin reading skills.

Latin for the New Millennium Level 2 introduces students to the significant corpus of Latin literature from 450 CE to 1750 CE providing them a window to the thinking of the intellectual giants of the western world. As stewards of the Latin legacy, it is paramount that we provide students this "window" to post-antique Latin's 2,000 year continuum of linguistic and cultural development.

The selections from Cornelius Nepos's Life of Atticus build students' familiarity with and understanding of such figures from the Roman Republic of the first century CE as Cicero, Sulla, Brutus, Cassius, Antony, Caesar, Cinna, Agrippa, Augustus, and Atticus.

While encountering the great Latin literature of the 1,500 years following the fall of Rome, students will remain firmly planted in the world of classical Latin with over 275 lines of connected, unadapted prose from Cornelius Nepos's Life of Atticus. The Atticus readings can be read as separate, discrete lessons. So, teachers can skip a reading as needed.
